

The impeccable fusion of beauty and precision is evident in Buechel Stone's cut-to-fit stone arches, copings, sills, hearths, mantles and fireplace surrounds.

The craftsmen at Buechel Stone begin each custom, cut-to-fit stone project by first listening to the design wishes of their customer. They then create, on AutoCAD, a three-dimensional rendering based on the customer's desires guided by their solid knowledge of masonry and construction methods. The final step is made possible with their state-of-the-art automated Cut Stone System, which brings tremendous precision and detail to the cut stone designs.

Most of Buechel Stone's cut stone items are made from Indiana limestone, Texas Cream limestone or Silverdale limestone, which are softer stones that are easy to sculpt. It is also common for cut stone items to be created from granite and harder limestone. The possibilities to produce visually stunning cut stone masonry elements are almost endless—limited only by the imagination and Mother Nature's palette.

The Perfect Fit Cut Stone from Buechel Stone Corporation

In addition to the custom, cut-to-fit items, Buechel Stone has attractive and competitively priced cut stone stock items such as sills, hearths, keystones and fireplaces. Buechel Stone's stock fireplace surrounds were created by the craftsmen at Buechel Stone after they carefully listened to customers describe the various attributes desired in a fireplace surround. Each stock cut stone fireplace surround is individually packaged with instructions, making installation easy for the average homeowner or if you prefer the most experienced mason.

Whether the job is small or large, Buechel Stone will surely please. They have created cut stone items as tiny as decorative light mounts and outlets to grand entrance archways to twenty-five-foot high fireplaces and everything in between.
